You Decide

12.2 Kody Farmer suffered from chronic back pain stemming from a work-related injury and underwent back surgery. Farmer, for roughly a decade, took a variety of different medications to relieve his pain including Ultram (a painkiller) and Soma (a muscle relaxer). Four days prior to his arrest for driving while intoxicated (DWI), Farmer also was prescribed Ambien to combat his insomnia. Farmer typically took the Ultram and Soma, both of which contain warning that they may induce drowsiness, before taking a shower in the morning and driving to work.

(Continued)