

Base-rate fallacy: tendency to prefer information derived from one's experience and ignore information that is representative of most people or situations.