

Internal reliability: extent to which people tend to score similarly on different parts of a measurement that is completed only once.