

Alpha level (or significance level): probability value that states the likelihood that a statistical result occurred by chance.